

Spotlight on...

Mums and dads, nanas and papas and extended family and friends were no doubt proud of every one of these youngsters as they took their place in Fair Day history. Photographer Michael Gillen captured the town's own royalty.

Sword Bearer Arran Bremner carefully carried the sword as he made his way through the crowds to the stage.

Chief Lady in Waiting Anna Torrance looked beautiful in her red gown, looking every inch like royalty.

Yeoman of the Guard Harris Davidson (left) and Mayson Hunter were first to take the stage in the Glebe.

Fair Day Crowning

Queen's Heralds Callum Gilfillian (left) and Millar Anderson were happy to herald the start of Queen Ella's reign.

Ladies in waiting brought a beautiful flash of colour to the Glebe as they made their way towards the stage.

Bower girls looked a vision in purple as they made their way through the massive crowds assembled in the Glebe Park.

Guards of honour looked fantastic kitted out in their traditional Scottish regalia for the big day.

Fairies looked so cute with their wings and their wands for a day we're sure none of them will ever forget.
